FLOWS

Seven · Madam + the Household Team

HOW TO READ THIS

Two surfaces, one wardrobe

Every flow reads left to right across its pages. Each screen is tagged by who uses it, and the two sides hand off to one another.

MADAM · iPhone app

Madam

The wardrobe owner. Dark charcoal tag. Madam's private iPhone app for browsing, building looks, planning and sharing.

HOUSEHOLD TEAM · Web studio

The Household Team

The team who run it. Brass tag. Their secure web studio for uploading, tagging, preparing and scheduling.

THE SEVEN FLOWS

01

Cataloguing a piece

How to add a new piece and see it in the wardrobe.

02

Planning the week

How to build an outfit and have it scheduled, ready to wear.

03

The day: wear, share, care

How to review the day's look, share it, and lay it out.

04

Styling by voice

How to style a full outfit by speaking or typing.

05

Insights & rediscovery

How to see what's worn and restyle a forgotten piece.

06

Managing the wardrobe

How the team upload, tag and place the collection.

07

Household Team, access, privacy

How to set staff access and revoke it instantly.

A NOTE ON SCOPE

This is not a comprehensive view of every screen. It's a carefully curated selection that gives an overview of the wardrobe application's main features. As part of project kick-off and scoping, we will map out every screen, variant and user journey, and this will be approved before any build begins, so we build exactly what you want.

Cataloguing a new piece

HOUSEHOLD TEAM → MADAM

How to add a new piece and see it appear, fully tagged, in the wardrobe.

1 Bulk-upload & AI-tag

The Household Team upload photos; the wardrobe manager detects type, colour, fabric and brand, queueing each as a draft to review.

GETTING AROUND THIS SCREEN

Drop photos to upload
Drag a batch of images in, or use single-photo capture for one piece at a time.

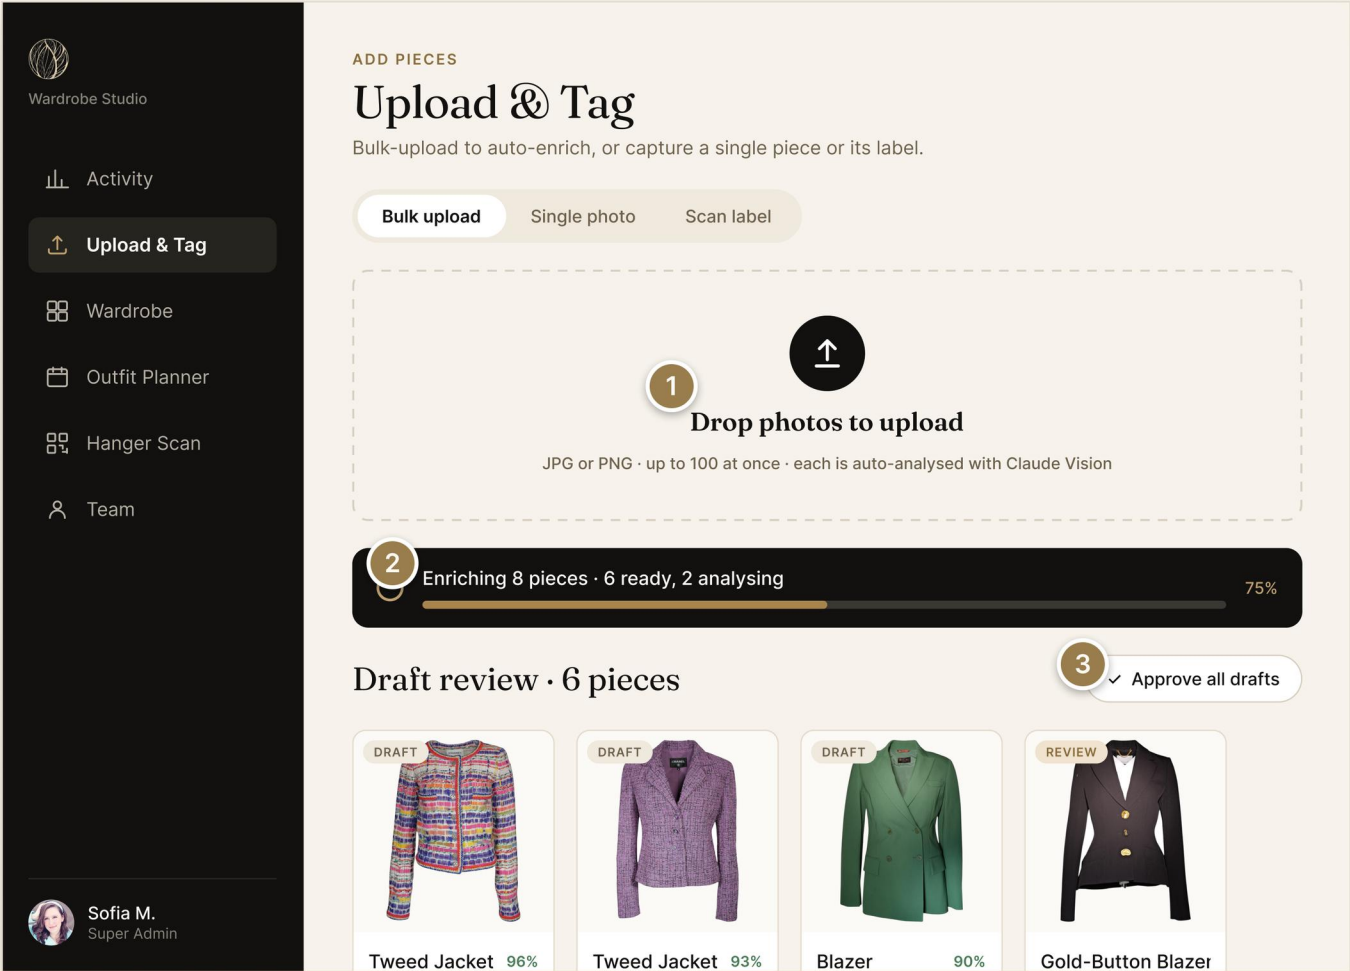

2

Wardrobe manager auto-tags
Type, colour, fabric and brand are read from the image; the Household Team just confirm.

3

Approve all drafts
Review the read-back, then approve in one tap to publish to the wardrobe.

Cataloguing a new piece

HOUSEHOLD TEAM → MADAM

What this shows: how the Household Team catalogue a new garment so it appears, fully tagged, in Madam's app.

4 Appears for Madam

It syncs to Madam's phone straight away and appears in search, filterable by colour, fabric and formality.

5 Ready to wear & style

Full imagery, brand, colour and fabric. One tap adds it to an outfit or builds looks around it.

Filterable wardrobe
Madam browses the whole collection, filtered by colour, fabric or formality.

2

Tap for the full piece
Full imagery, brand, colour and fabric — with where it hangs.

3

Add to an outfit
One tap starts a look built around the piece Madam is viewing.

ABOUT · WHO YOU'RE WORKING WITH

Built with you, not just for you.

James Levine

JAMES LEVINE DIGITAL · AGENCY OWNER AND LEAD ENGINEER

For several years I was a lead engineer at AWS, Amazon's cloud division, and I'm lucky enough to now run my own digital agency working with clients like yourself. I specialise in security and compliance, building secure web and mobile applications for enterprises including Reach Plc, Ryanair, Thomson Reuters and the BBC.

This wardrobe application would be built the same way. We work closely together from day one: scoping every screen, variant and journey, agreeing exactly what we're building, then shaping it as it comes to life, so you end up with a bespoke system you genuinely love using.
